

INSTITUTIONAL DISTINCTIVENESS

The college is dedicated to making quality education accessible to everyone within an inclusive and supportive environment. The college's open-door policy ensures that there are no hierarchical barriers across levels in the college ensuring an atmosphere of effective communication and mutual respect. The Principal and staff take a personal interest in student and staff welfare, actively working with the university and government to resolve issues promptly.

In addition, the college provides financial assistance to deserving students through scholarships funded by charitable trusts, alumni and faculty contributions, endowments, and the SEAT scholarship awarded by the management. Students are empowered to develop leadership, managerial, and teamwork skills through autonomy in planning and organizing events, with faculty guidance. The college also offers a range of add-on courses aimed at skill development and job readiness.

In order to ensure development and progress of staff members, the college organizes a number of staff development programmes and also recognises achievements across all levels through awards and incentives.

The warm and welcoming environment at SIES fosters a sense of safety, security, and belonging, creating a space where everyone is encouraged to thrive academically and personally.
